WOUND CAUSED HIS DEATH.

MYSTERY REGARDING THE DECEASE F WILLIAM HENDERSON.

Certificate From Florida That the Well-Known Brooklynite Died of Heart Failure -An Autopsy in Brooklyn Shows a Fatal Wound in the Back of the Head.

There is some mystery connected with the death of William Henderson, which was reported from Cocoa, Fla., March 15. Henderson a ways lived in Brooklyn and was a friend of many Brooklyn politicians. He was visiting Florida with a party of politicians which inaded the Hon. Hugh McLaughlin, Thomas F. Nevins, the ex-Fire Chief, Frank Nevins. Jeremiah Quaid, Thomas Kerrigan, Dr. James A. Roach, the son-in-law of Hugh McLaughlin. and Assistant District Attorney W. C. Courtney. The party were stopping at Nevins's River ew Hotel, Merrit Island, Fia., which is owned by ex-Chief Nevins. Henderson's death was despatch addressed to James Dunne, Under Sheriff of Kings county:

gently to his wife. I am on the way north with the body T. F. NEVINS.

Dunne notified Mrs. Henderson and with Charles Johnson was requested to meet the tody on its arrival and to arrange for the funeral. The body got here Saturday, March 17. Dunne and Johnson were at the railroad depot in Jersey City to meet it. Nevins, who came with it, brought with him a certificate of death, setting forth that Henderson had died of heart failire. On the way by the Annex ferry to Brooklyn Mr. Nevins told Dunne and Johnson that Henderson had been found dead on the piazza of the hotel at 5 o'clock in the morning, March 15, that he was in a sitting posture when found. Dr. Reach had been called quickly and he found that Henderson had been dead two hours and it was his opinion that death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Nevins accompanied the body only as tar as Brooklyn. He said he was in a hurry to get back to Florida. Andrew J. Curran, an undertaker, had been employed to take charge of the body in Brooklyn and when he learned that it was not planned to have the funeral services for several days he decided that the body for several days he decided that the body would have to be embalmed and he had it taken from the casket where it lay surrounded by orange blossoms. Under the head he found a piece of bloodstained gauze. He made an examination of the body and he found a deep wound in the scalp in the back of the head and an indentation half an inch deep. It seemed to have been caused by a heavy blow. He reported the matter to Under Sheriff Dunne and Mr. Johnson. They recalled the death certificate giving heart failure as the cause of death and they also recalled what now seemed to them a lack of frankness on the part of ex-Chief Nevins.

investigated case, and he stated it was a clear called a poplexy.

Mr. Hen lerson was found dead one morning in his night clothes. It is thought here that perhaps in falling he struck his head on a door edge or projection of the floor and this might have caused a hole in the skull. Doctors here laugh at any theory that he was accidentally killed or that death ensued from any other cause than that stated in the certificate.

the first Argentine warship to enter this narbor since the swift cruiser Nueve de Julio visited us in 1803.

The commander of the Presidente Sarmiento is Capt, Betbeder, who was second in command of the Nueve de Julio. The training ship is one of the finest of her class in the world. She is only two years old, is built of steel, sheathed with wood and measures 2,750 tons. She can, and does on occasions, use her canvas only, as she is equipped as a full-rigged three-masted ship. Her complement is thirty-six officers, forty cadets and 258 saliors.

All the cadets are natives of Argentina, and, after their world-cruise is over, they will become ensigns in the Argentine Navy, which consists of five battleships, five cruisers tall of modern make), five torpedo boat destrovers, nine gunboats, two monitors for coast defence,
and twenty-two torpedo boats. The Presidente Sarmiento's armament consists of five 4.7-inch Arn, strong guns, two is-inch, one Gatling and five Maxim machine guns. She is fitted with three torpedo tubes.

Consul-General Rohl says that when the American South Atlantic squadron recently visited Argentina it was rovally greeted. He hopes that the Americans will return the compliment when the Presidente Sarmiento gets here. It is the hope of the South American republic, Mr. Rohl says, to increase the triendship between herself and her big northern sister.

Mertz and Houseman requested permistion, Mertz and Houssman requested permission from Magistrate Brenner to withdraw the charges. They said Kane would probably receive sufficient punishment from the Policy Board, before whom he is to be tried on charges next Tuesday. Magistrate Brenner denied the request and asked Mr. Mertz to take the stand. Kane then waived examination.

The Magistrate held him to await the action of the Grand Jury on the two charges of lebenious assault, flxing ball at $300 m each case, and suspended sentence on the charge of intoxication. toxication.

Initiation Fee $2, Payable in Advance-Big Wages and Short Hours Promised Hand-Drill Operators Get Together, Too-Canal Street Sewer Will Be Broken.

"No more ceremony" was the only announcement that Mr. John B. McDonald had to make | Murray said he had entered the place with a yesterday relative to his contract to build the Rapid Transit tunnel, and it seemed to please him to be able to say it. In the morning the contractor had a talk with Mr. August Belmont, President of the Rapid Transit Construction Company, about the plans for the several sections of the work, and in the afternoon he was all over town. Probably nobody but John B. McDonald could have told just where he was or how much ground he had covered. There was an hour's session of the Executive Committee of the construction company in the afternoon. Of the several subcontracts that are to be awarded next week none is more important than that for the building a new sewer to take the place of the one now in Canal street, east of Elm. The present Canal street sewer empties into the North River and drains the big section between Bond and Franklin streets on the north and south and Orchard street and the North River on the east and west. Where it crosses Elm street, in the route of the Rapid Transit tunnel, it is but three or four feet below the surface. Instead of lowering the sewer level to make way for the tunnel, as is being done with the Bleecker street sewer, the Canal street system of drainage will be cut into two sections. All that portion of the district west of Elm street will still be drained by the old Canal street sewer into the North River. The section east of Elm street will be drained into the East River by the new sewer that is to follow a roundabout course down to the foot of Oliver street. This arrangement foot of Oliver street. This arrangement will enable the contractor to do away with the sewer under Elm street at Canal altogether. The course of the new sewer will be down Centre to Leonard, through Leonard, across Mulberry Park, through Mulberry street, through Worth street, across the Bowery and through Oliver street to the East River. That route is about a mile long. Until the new sewer is completed the present Canal street sewer will have to remain as it is now, three feet below the surface of Elm street and in the way of the tunnel.

sewer will have to remain as it is now, three feet below the surface of Eim street and in the way of the tunnel.

"This new sewer," said Chie! Engineer Parsons of the Rapid Transit Commission yesterday, "is one of the most important parts of the work. It is what we call a 'controlling point,' that is this sewer must be constructed before the tunnel can be made complete on Eim street, There will be a break at Canal street until the sewer can be cut off there and that will probably be a year from now."

Engineer Parsons ment oned the loop at the Post Office, the deep tunneiling at Fort George and the tunneiling under the northwest corner of Central Park as other "controlling points."

Contractor Pilkington's men who are at work lowering the Bleecker street sewer to a depth of 21 feet extended their trench which begins at Greene street about twenty feet toward Mercer street yesterday, making a total length of 100 feet already dug to a depth varying from one to three feet. Foreman James Olley, who has charge of the work at this point, sent half of his force of fifteen men away with trucks yesterday to get the portable bucket trolley. This will be erected to-day and with the increased facilities for getting rid of the dirt a much larger gang will be put to work in the trench to-morrow. Contractor Pilkington's boiler and engine for operating the bucket trolley will be located in Bleecker street between Broadway and Mercer.

Cady, Berg and See, architects, of 31 East Seventeenth street, mailed a certified check for $250 drawn on the Mechanics' Bank to J. F. Bridstroup, an electrician, of 35 Franklin street, last Friday. When he pulled it out of his pocketbook a pawnticket came with it and this circumstance excited the suspicions of the clerk, who called in Detectives. Murnhy and Driscoll of Capt. McCiusky's staff. They arrested Breger. He was arraigned vesterday in the Essex Market notice court and Bridstroup declared that his signature on the check was a forgery. Breger refused to tell where he got the check and was held for trial. The Weather.

Victim of a Raid on the Newmarket Wants

Harold G. Murray, who was one of the many persons taken in a raid of the Newmarket at Thirtieth street and Sixth avenue about mid-night of March 5, 1897, had an action on trial before Justice MacLean of the Supreme Court yesterday to recover $3,000 damages from Police Captain Chapman because of his arrest friend to see what was going on. under arrest, and bundled all off to the station in patrol wagons.

Murray said he put in the rest of the night with four other persons in a foul-smelling cell, and was not permitted to telephone to friends. No warrant had been shown to him, and he was discharged next morning in the police court without having to give evidence. He alleged that the Newmarket, now the Haymarket, was duly licensed to sell liquors: that its doors were open to the public, and that he had a right to be there. Captain Chapman being called to testify for the plaintiff, said that he was in command of the precinct embracing the place at the time and he had given his policemen orders to arrest everybody in the Newmarket.

Justice MacLean denied a motion to dismiss the case on the plaintiff's evidence, and two policemen were called for the defense who said that the place was visited by prostitutes and theves. The defendant contends that he cannot be held liable as he had a warrant and was acting within its scope. The case was not concluded.

Chief Schneider, until about two months ago, was popular, but about that time he stirred up a horner's nest by compelling one or two of the local hotelkeepers to raise the curtains of their barrooms and close up on time. The Village Board at that time was favorable to Schneider. When the time came for spring election an anti-Schneider ticket was nominated and supported by every hotelkeeper in the place. It won by a small majority. Schneider promptly resident Schneider's friends have not given up the flight to have him retained and will present a petition to the Selectmen asking them not to accept his resignation.

STANDING BY DR. HILLIS. PLYMOUTH CHURCH LEADERS IN-DORSE HIS CREED.

He Says He Will Withdraw From the No Heresy Trial-His Views Known for Several Years to His Western Accusers.

Plymouth Church was much stirred up yesterday over the severe condemnation of its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, by professors of McCormick Theological Semi-nary at Chicago for his alleged heretical discourse on Sunday morning and over his threatened trial unless he immediately withha is still a member. There will be no heresy Sumper has on board $1,300,000 in gold with trial, however, for Dr. Hillis will retire at once | which the Government is going to meet some of from the Chicago Presbytery, and his own con-gregation has apparently no fault to find with his flerce denunciation of the "hell-fire" tenets of the Presbyterian creed. Dr. Hillis said yes-

"I have read the Chicago despatches and they have caused me no little surprise and pain. As a student for the ministry I joined the Presbytery of Chicago at 20 years of age. I have been somewhat unwilling to sever all relations with my past life, and as no objection was made on the part of Plymouth Church. I retained my membership in the Presbytery of Chicago. My liberal views, however, have been well known in that city. I have never concealed my ideas, and what little light I have had has not been hidden under a bushel. Some years ago I worked with voice and pen and personal influences to bring about the excision from the creed of the very passages in the confession to which I referred in the sermon last Sunday. In the General Assembly in 1894. I spoke and voted for the retention of Prof. Henry Smith, who was expelled from the Church for his liberal views. When I entered the rulpit of the Central Church after Dr Swing's death, I went to Dr. Gray, editor of the Interior, and told him that I wished to leave my withdrawal from the Presbytery in his hands, a+I did not wish to be an occasion of disturbance or dissension.

"It is only fair to Dr. Johnson and his associates in the Theological Seminary to say that for years they have objected to my position. Dr. Johnson's present harsh criticism of his old pupil and the statement that he finds noth ing but evil in the influences of my present views shall not blind me to the great good in him. I had hoped that the time had come when differences in regard to the doctrine of retribution were to be tolerated in the Presbytery of Chicago. No teacher of Jesus Christ should be a source of irritation and annoyance, and if the Presbytery of Chicago finds my present membership among them a matter of embarrassment I shall, of course, put aside my personal affections and my old ties and go out from them. It is the penalty that every man who believes in tolerapenalty that every man who believes in tolera-tion and charity must pay. He cannot and would not try for heresy those who teach the doctrine of retribution and forcordination of certain men to everiasting death. Nor can he resist when others attack him for repeating that bassage in the creed ending with those words: By the decree of tood some men and angels are forcordained to everlasting death, and these are particularly and unchangeably designed, and their number is so certain and definite that it cannot be either increased or diminished.

definite that it cannot be either increased or diminished."
"Having conceded liberty to my old instructors to teach that, I do not propose to lose my own liberty in centring it. So long as I live I shall coatinue to make my protest against this doctrine that libels the gospel of Jesus Christ, misrepresents the divine government and is calculated to turn men away from Jesus Christ, the world's Saviour, Regenerator and Redeemer as well as its Judge and King."

Dr. Hillis said that under the circumstances he could see only one course to pursue, and that was to retire at once from the Chicago Presbytery. that was to retire at once from the Chicago Presbytery.

The Rev. Horace Porter, one of Dr. Hillis's as-sistants, made this brief comment on the con-troversy: "What effect will this have on the church and the pastor? Only this—to make us all love and revers Dr. Hillis more than ever."

church and the pastor? Only this to mine use all love and revere Dr. Hillis more than ever."

Thomas G. Shearman said: "The church is with Dr. Hillis, who, of course, is not orthodox according to the McCormick Theological seminary. One reason for calling Dr. Hillis to Plymouth Church was that we knew him to be a disciple of Henry Ward Beecher. No one in Plymouth Church believes in the Westminster Confession of Faith as interpreted by the Theological Seminary. I expected that Dr. Hillis would ask for his dismissal from the Cheago Presbytery before this. We do not want Dr. Hillis to remain a Presbyterian; we want him to be a Congregationalist. I doubt very much if the Chicago Presbytery would take any action if Dr. Hillis did not resign. The McCormick Seminary represents the old school and the presbytery. I think, is about equally alvided between the old and the new."

Stephen V. White said: "What the devil—excuse the expression—has the Chicago Presbytery to do with Dr. Hillis? He is preaching no new doctrine: it is the same old doctrine that is a been preached in Plymouth Church for the past onity years—the same that Beecher and Abbott preached before him. There will not be a ripple in the church over this matter. It is of little importance."

Other leading members of the church declared that they were in hearty sympathy with the teachings of Dr. Hillis, and that they did not mind the heresy scare from Chicago in the least.

Another practically new United States transport, the Crook, has just been overhanisd and altered at the Erie Basin at a cost of $200,000. The vessel has been transformed into one of the most commodious transports in the service, there being accommodations for about 1,200 soldiers, besides quarters for the officers.
